

To ExCom,
IEDC,
TKMCE

I was an active member of IEDC during first year, but due to some unlikely events and experiences I felt like not indulging more into activities under IEDC. But during Third Year I again started to keep up with activities conducted by IEDC, and it was kind of a great experience. I always wanted to be a part of this community, more because of my passion towards entrepreneurship and innovation as well.

Previous semester I initiated a startup called "Raastha" with guidance and support from some of the senior IEDC excom members. It was a good experience but because of institutional restrictions from college I decided to take it completely private. That obviously reduced my reach inside college, but I was able to raise enough money in quite a short time and was still running profitably until the pandemic situation. And only because of that capital raised I was able to fund my dream project which I along with my 4 friends launched a week back named "myPuP (Make Your Passion Your Profession)Community". And under this banner we have already setup few events and made agreements with some well known celebrities and also less known but passionate people in kerala who are successful at international levels.

I have previous experience in the innovation field also. I have 1 product named "Ridicle" certificated by KSUM and selected to the final round of YIP by KSUM whose final stage is yet to be conducted.

And my other completely non-profit project which is still at idea stage is AIEES (Automated and Integrated Enhanced Emergency System). Which intends to bring Improvement in Ambulance and Health Care Facilities by an application level operation.

I am also part of the sponsorship committee and a few other committees which I think have given some insight to college activities which I think might be useful for me. Hoping to hear back from you.
